Manipulation of Flowering: Proceedings of Previous Easter Schools in Agricultural Science (Easter School in Agricultural Science//Proceedings) J. G. Atherton

Manipulation of Flowering presents the edited proceedings of the 45th University of Nottingham Easter School in Agricultural Science held at Sutton Bonington in England on April 7-10, 1986.

This book is organized into eight sections. The first main section examines the measurement and prediction of flowering and analyzes how best to measure flowering when the aim is either to assist physiological interpretations or construct predictive models. The following sections explore juvenility, the nature of determination in meristems, vernalization, photoperiodic induction and flower evocation, and initiation and development to anthesis. Each of the main sections provides an analysis of the flowering problems and a critical view of how to achieve a better understanding and use of the physiology of flowering.

This book will be of interest to crop researchers, plant physiologists, geneticists, and others interested in understanding flowering manipulation.
