It is a great way for kids to become familiar with western culture and ancient civilizations while letting their imagination soar. By ways of mythological fables, the Moon and the Sea fall passionately in love—an impossible, long-distance love. Hercules, an affectionate husband, has been arguing with his wife. He angrily throws his fishing net up in the air while accidentally trapping the Moon and yanking it towards the Sea. At last, the Sea and the Moon could kiss one another. A beautiful and engaging story about nature, this book provides creative explanations for rain and the sound of the waves crashing into one another.
